Softonic review Google, formerly known as Google Search, puts the power of the search giant on your iPhone. It features everything you expect from the desktop version, plus voice search. Google where and when you need it. You can search the internet with Google using iOS's Safari, Chrome, or any other installed browser, so why would you want a standalone Google App? Google's answer to that is that this app focuses on the world around you, where you actually use your smartphone. This means that you can use voice search rather than having to focus your attention on entering text, and make easy use of your device's GPS functionality to find desired services and locations near you. Simple searches and ample apps Tap the microphone button, then say what you want to search for, and (most of the time) Google will successfully find what you are after. Other than that, a selection of intuitive taps and swipes manage all of your browsing needs. Google has an Apps button too - this leads you to the full suite of Google Apps, from Google Earth, to YouTube. The user experience here is a bit mixed and dependent on what you already have installed. Some open on a browser in app, while others - like YouTube - will either open the app itself or take you to the App Store to download it. While this does kick you out of the main app, the speedy access it provides to other, relevant services can prove useful. On the Google app, the streamlined on-the-go interface justifies its value as an additional standalone app. The access to other Google products could be better integrated, but does prove a handy shortcut. Searches Web, iPhone contacts, photos, maps, and more Localized results based on your location Voice recognition launches as soon as you activate the app Just searches Google Most of the functionality can now be found in Chrome Google for Android Google for Web Apps Softonic review Mobile Legends Bang Bang is eerily similar to the world famous game called "League Of Legends." You pick a character, and you fight with four online allies against five online players. Use teamwork and strategy to beat the other players. A co-operative team fighting game Mobile Legends Bang Bang is an RTS game where you pick a hero with a set of certain powers, such as mele, magic, lightning, fire, etc. You then team up with four other players and take on five online players. You are matched with other people automatically, and you each need to help each other and protect each other because there is no way to win with a lone-wolf strategy. This game is not for children because there is a messaging system and many player write horrific and vile things in messages that are not for children. The aim is to win matches and climb up the leader boards. It is not about completing the game, it is about playing with and against strangers online. Some people complain that heroes are unbalanced, which they are, but it adds more of a rock, paper, scissors element to the game, which means luck of the draw is more of a factor. A fine alternative to League Of Legends Mobile Legends Bang Bang is a fine game, even if it is a very watered down version of League Of Legends. However, the biggest problem is the gaming lag. There are a total of ten signals going to the sever for each game, and the game currently has to lag to keep everybody in sync. There may be other reasons for the lag, such as players cheating, heavy CPU use, and so forth. Mobile Legends Bang Bang is not as good as League of Legends, but there is no rule that says you cannot play both. There is a smaller pool of players with Mobile Legends Bang Bang, so you have more chance of getting up the leader boards than you do with League of Legends. Game balancing is unfair and yet oddly effective Mobile Legends Bang Bang The app will occasionally crash for no reason There is an intermittent lag problem Mobile Legends: Bang Bang for Windows Mobile Legends: Bang Bang for Android Free Download for Android Free Download for Windows Free Download for Windows Free Download for Windows Free Download for Android Installing apps from other sources other than your trusted app store can be risky. Free Download for Windows Facebook is one of the most powerful social media platforms to date and throughout the years, it has continued to evolve with new and interesting features. It is now more than just a tool for messaging and communication. With Facebook being constantly improved to keep up with the people's fast-paced lifestyle, you might have missed some of its important updates and added functions. Here's what's new with Facebook's latest version. Discovering love with Facebook With millions of people using Facebook, it makes it an ideal place to start finding the love of your life. The famous social media site introduces a dating feature where users can create dating profiles, which is a separate and different profile from their current ones. To make sure that you can be connected with other, new people, your dating profile cannot be accessed nor seen by your Facebook friends. The dating feature will let you create brand new connections and relationships while being able to keep your dating life private and hidden from your Facebook friends unless they, too, have created their own Facebook dating profile. This feature comes with its own chat inbox that is separate from Facebook Messenger so you can focus entirely on your love life. Of course, while your dating profile is hidden to people who are not engaged in Facebook Dating, there is still hope for you to get together with your Facebook crush. Secret Crush is one of its useful features where you get to secretly mark or take note of the friends that you are interested in. The moment that they join Facebook Dating, they are notified that someone already has their eyes set on them. This is now your chance to get matched with the apple of your eye! Endless opportunities Your love life is not the only one that Facebook will help you. It has also made itself a hub for career opportunities for people who want to find jobs. Employers are able to post job listings that Facebook users can look into. People can also filter the jobs according to their speciality, job description, and location. Because the social media site is being used by almost everyone in the world, it makes it a strategic place both for employers and job hunters to connect with each other. Aside from job opportunities, Facebook has also become a perfect place to shop. Online sellers can post their products on Facebook's Marketplace. It is a community where Facebook users are able to buy and sell items just like in eBay. This presents a good opportunity for small business owners to promote their products by getting in touch with the community. It can also be a place for other people to buy cheaper, pre-loved items that would have cost so much more when bought at malls and commercial stores. The Marketplace makes it easy for you to find the item you are looking for by sorting them into different categories like Housing and Entertainment. A new look Facebook is having another makeover that comes not only with a new logo design but also a redesigned timeline. The new interface appears brighter than before with the app getting rid of its iconic blue and replacing it with more white space. It does help make Facebook seem neater and easier to look at, especially since the contents of the timeline are made bigger, making them easier to read. It does not, however, have any major effect on how the timeline functions. As usual, stories can be viewed at the very top of your screen while the main menu can be accessed at the very bottom. Users can continue scrolling through their timeline to check for updates from friends and pages that they follow. Manage your Groups Groups has been included in Facebook's main menu as the app aims to make it more accessible to users, with it being one of Facebook's most-used function. People can now enjoy scrolling through their groups' activities in a separate tab. Group recommendations based on their current groups are also available so users can connect with other communities that share similar interests. There is also an Explore option if you are feeling adventurous and in the mood to meet new people. Being able to check for group updates in a separate timeline is convenient, but that is not the only thing that Facebook has made easier. Joining and leaving groups can now be done in just a few clicks. With how the Groups featured is tailored to your interests, finding a new group to join in is a piece of cake, and so is leaving a group that you think you should not be a part of. Gone are the days where you have to visit each of your groups in order to find and click on the Leave button. Now, all you have to do is visit the Settings option located at the top of your Groups tab and it will show you a list of all the groups that you are a member of. Beside each name is the Leave button, allowing you to depart from a group one after the other. A growing community Social media engagement has become a part of people's routine and Facebook is putting an effort into making itself an all-in-one platform. It can be used for entertainment, business, and even research purposes. Facebook is undeniably one of the most-used social media apps in every country and if you still do not have your own Facebook account, there is so much in the world that you are missing. The latest update to the Facebook app brings with it the power to control what you see on your news feed. Within the new news feed settings menu you can view the people, pages, and groups that you've seen the most activity from in your news feed. If these people are starting to get on your nerves you can simply un-follow them so their posts won't show up in your feed. Don't worry, it's easy to see who you've already un-followed and start re-following them again. Another new option within the news feed is the ability to tap on the down arrow in a post to remove a post from your timeline or directly un-follow a person.
